

Dear student,

I hope this email finds you safe and well, and that you are enjoying your learning.

Your health and wellbeing

Earlier this week you should have received an update from my colleagues jointly with our Students' Union on ways we can help support your wellbeing. It is incredibly important that you look after yourself during these difficult times, and please do reach out to us if you need help. Remember as well that there is financial support available for any of you who are struggling financially as a result of the pandemic.

Our educational offer for the rest of this semester

I am hoping to receive information from Government in the next couple of weeks regarding whether we are able to offer in person educational activities to more of our students from 8 March. I continue to be hopeful that we will, and will let you know as soon as I know more. In the meantime, I hope your education is going well, and if you have any questions or concerns do talk to your Academic Advisor, or School or Institute. Please remember that you are very welcome to come onto our campuses, if you need to use study space or our facilities, or feel your mental or physical wellbeing would be better served by being on campus.

Students looking to travel to the UK from overseas

If you are planning to join us from overseas in the near future please do have a look at the new government regulations on entering the UK. International students should also have a look at the process for a later arrival in the UK and the implications on their Student immigration permission, including eligibility for the proposed Graduate Route.

I do hope everything is going well for you. These are very difficult times: please do look after yourselves and each other, and keep safe. Please also remember that we are here to support you, and reach out if you need help.

Best wishes,

Colin
